Since the Denubbewa had attacked without first making a declaration of war, the order was given to destroy every Denubbewa ship found in G.A. space without warning and without mercy.

And when an enormous armada was discovered in Region Three, Space Command dispatched all available ships to engage the overwhelming force. Despite the odds, the Space Command force was victorious, but they knew this was not the end of the war. Space Command Intelligence had learned that the Denubbewa military had hundreds of thousands of warships, staffed by trillions of mindless cyborg slaves ready to die on command for their masters. The arrival of the armada was merely the final test of wormhole technology advancement, and the fleet sent ahead was expected to be waiting to join the full armada when it arrived.
